DIVIDEND DECLARED

Stock-Taking is over, and in closing accounts for the past year, HALE BROS. & CO. have good reason to congratulate themselves upon the enormous growth of their business during the past year, and its success

It may be remembered that in our opening announcement two years ago, we stated that we did not come with the expectation of making a fortune in a few years, but that our aim was to make the business yield a fair interest on the capital invested. We have adhered strictly to the principles then enunciated, and in doing so we feel assured that while advancing our own interests, we have immeasurably advanced those of the publicinasmuch as we have educated the people as to what DRY GOODS, CLOTHING, BOOTS AND SHOES can be sold for WHEN BOUGHT FOR CASH, AND IM-PORTED DIRECT. If public approval be the measure of our success, then that measure has been filled to over-$5.000 WANTED—FOR A TERM OF years. Will pay 10½ per cent. interest per annum, and give a $12,000 country property as security. Inquire of CARL STROBEL, No. 221 J street.

THE RAILROAD TAX SUITS.

Judge Waymire, of the Superior Court of San Francisco, has dissolved the injunction restraining the Sheriff of Sacramento county from selling the Central Pacific Railroad property for taxes, on the ground that the remedy sought is not the proper one. The tax suits of which this is one have been made the theme of much decla. mation against the railroad company, which has been roundly accused of a desire to escape taxation. In some of the counties where payment of the railroad taxes has been resisted, the dearth of county revenue has so endangered the continuance of proper government as to add greatly to the popular feeling on the subject. We admit that this is by no means unnatural. Whenever a wealthy corporation is concerned there is a disposition to regard it with unfriendliness, and to suspect it of a desire to evade the fulfillment of its duties. But though it may be hard to realize that a corporation is entitled to precisely the same fairness of treatment in these matters as individuals enjoy, the fact is so, and unless it be admitted it will never be possible to avoid misunderstandings. In all these tax cases it is claimed. on behalf of the corporation, that it has been unjustly assessed, and it must be said plainly that the proof of this assertion appears to have been made in nearly every case. The assessments seem to have been based on an extra-legal hypothesis that because the company was rich it ought to pay higher taxes in proportion than other taxpayers. The State Board of Equalization has proceeded on this assumption, and the result has been the addition of perhaps 40 per cent, more taxes than the facts justified, to the assessment roll.

The popular theory seems to be that the railroad ought to have paid whatever was demanded, and that because it has not done this, but has protested and resisted, therefore it is highly culpable. In some counties there has actually been a disposition to deprive it of the ordinary protection of the law because it declined to pay what it held to be exorbitant taxes; and almost everywhere it has been denounced as though there could be no equities on its side. But it must be realized that if either an individual or a corporation yields without protest or opposition to a method of taxation which he or it believes to be in the nature of confiscation, the result will be to sanction and perpetuate the wrong, and even to facilitate its further expansion. The real question at issue is whether or not the railroad has been assessed too high. If proof is advanced in support of that position the justification of the company's resistance must be regarded as complete; for it certainly cannot be expected or required by a justice-loving people that any of their members, whether joined as corporators, or individually, shall be singled ing a collision occurred between the troops and out for discriminating and excessive tax-

And it is necessary to lay stress upon the fact that the alleged failure of the railroad to pay its taxes is attributable, in the case above stated, not to its own indisposition to meet any just demands, but to the inequity of the proceedings by which it has been sought to make it bear far more than its just share of the common burden. Had In an accident on the Rio Grande Railroad near the assessments been reasonable: had Hastings, Saturday night, two men were killed and they been made upon the same basis as those of individuals; had they folfaithfully; there would not have been any resistance to them, and consequently the The controversy which has suddenly county treasuries could long since have sprung up over an alleged letter of General been replenished. THE SUNDAY LAW DECISION.

Four Justices of the Supreme Court have decided the Sunday law constitutional. When a soldier fires he ought to contribute so many diverse opinions on the

"the duty of the Legislature to take no-"tice of the fact that many people are constrained by their religion to rest on the seventh day of the week, and Verdict of Guilty in the Santa Rosa Mur-'to have excepted them from the opera-'tion of the Sunday law. * * It is 'impossible for a person whose religion constrains him to observe the seventh day of each week to live up to the requirements of his religion, and at the same time obey the law, without sacrificing one day more each week than the person whose religion constrains him the first day, or the one who is not condiscrimination or preference, and, as I understand the Constitution, the Legislature has no power to pass such a law." This is very clear and very cogent, but the majority of the Court have avoided the necessity of taking such arguments into consideration by confining themselves to a purely secular view of the question. While, however, it is possible to bring forward such considerations in opposition to a law which has already proved a dead letter in many parts of the State owing to the division of public sentiment, it is evident that the almost accidental decision of the case by a majority of one cannot put an end to the agitation of it. The very fact that so many complex considerations enter into it; that it can be regarded either as a temperance question, a religious question, or a purely political question, according to the idiosyncracies of the individual; and that even when treated in the most dispassionate manner it is impossible to present it as on Sunday at 2 P. M., under the direction of the Masonic Order. a simple, uninvolved issue ; renders it certain that it will have to be fought out politically, at the polls and in the Legislature, and that it will continue to be a living issue until it has been decided in accordance with the views of an unquestioned majority of the people. And it is equally certain that the evident determination of a certain class to force the contest from the | made. standpoint of Sabbatarianism-a determination which will necessarily be fertified by this decision—is calculated to complicate it still more, and not improbably to alienate the sympathies of many who, if it were presented as a simple question of social necessity, would be almost certain to approve the general tendencies of the law. Legislative and gubernatorial candidates, however, will no doubt be catechized by both sides as to their standing on the question and their utmost ingenuity will be required in order to save them from Charybdis while trying to avoid Scylla.

MINING SPOOKS

A thrifty mining camp without a liberal supply of ghosts is a thing that cannot be found, and the miner, however intelligent, who has not more or less superstition in his make up ought to own right away that he is gold-digging just for a pastime and is not in his "reg'lar business.

Speaking of spooks, the night shift employed awhile ago at the Eagle mine, on the edge of Pine Grove Cemetery, got shaken up badly. At first they didn't hear anything worse than raps on the timbers midway in the incline shaft, which passes under the burying-ground fence as it descends, but after a few nights of this the sounds changed into shrieks of women, groans of men, and cries of children, that mad. Finally one of the employes actually threw up his situation, telling the owner of the mine confidentially that while he was alone in a drift the night before he saw asked what she was doing there the earth opened and swallowed her up. He was willing to swear that he saw all this, and some of the other men offered to make affi davits as to the shrieks and groans and cries. The sounds were afterwards found to be caused by the bellwire that went down the shaft rubbing against a spike, but the mystery of the woman has not yet been

AN AMERICAN BARON.-Richard M. Jackson, the son of an Ohio farmer, went from Steubenville to Stuttgart, ten years ago, to complete his musical education, intending to become a professional pianist. Too constant practice brought on a partial paralysis of the nerves of his hands, and he was compelled to give up his project. J. S. Potter, of Boston, was then the American Consul at Stuttgart. He employed Jackson as a clerk in his office. Americans were exceedingly unpopular in that city, chiefly through the bad conduct of some American students in the Conservatory, who had recently snowballed the King of Wurtemberg as he walked in a public park, besides offering him other indignities on several occasions. But the feeling was gradually overcome, principally by MR. R. W. HARRIS, 807 Montgomery street, for more particulars apply at J. PINET, 504 Jack son street. San Francisco, January 11, 1882,m13-ist gradually overcome, principally by Jackson's personal tact and popularity, and he became Vice-Consul. The King became his friend, and last summer invited him to become a member of the royal court of Wurtemberg. court is not a highly resplendent body, yet the offer dazzled the young American, and he has become a German citizen to accept it. He is now a baron, with an income from the public treasury, and nothing to do except to be companionable with the King. Moreover, he wins favors has the King of Saxony and the Emperor of Austria. Baron Jackson, as described by a writer in the Boston Herald, s short, fat and not handsome; but his eyes "have a pleasant, winning expres-sion that lights up his face and makes it almost fascinating to those with whom he SEQUEL TO A BORDER STORY .- The Denver newspapers recently had accounts of an exploit by Comanche Bill, a border character who swaggers about the Colorado long hair, and buckskin clothes. Seeing a clerk in a store insult a girl, he made her sit on the counter while the insulter, coerced by the proximity of a cocked pistol, did penance by kissing the soles of her across Comanche Bill in a saloon, where both were unarmed and the spectators were impartial, and cooly gave him his choice between an apology and a fight. The desperado tried in vain to escape, and received sound thrashing, to which he offered only a feeble resistance.

An anecdote of Auber: About fifteen years ago a young colored musician hap-pened to take part in violin competition at the Conservatoire. On the vote being taken as to whether he should be awarded an appointment in Oregor, and left his wife and three children behind him during his absence. His wife became acquainted with a minister of the Episcopal Church named Allen, and a recent arrival from England. SACRAMENTO INVENTIONS.

Patents have been issued to Benj. J. Brewer and A. G. Waterhouse, Sacramento, for an electric-lamp regulator; Thomas J. Loftus, for a bushing for barrels; Jehn N. Young, for bed-mattress. Carle & Croly, of this city, have invented and will apply for a patent for a new style of book-case. It i volumes more easy, and is especially adapted for mercantile and banking houses and for recorders' and similar offices. In all racks where heavy volumes are placed, the hand. ling of the books occasions severe wear upon the lower parts of the binding, caused by the dragging of the volume over the front edge of the case or rack, in adjusting them to the proper angle when received into the hands. The mechanism is very simple, and in the sample rack on exhibition works admirably. In the botton of each niche is fitted a floor, the front third of which is beveled to an angle at which it is desired to have the book emerge. At the upper end of withdrawn and perishes, this bevel, where it meets the horizontal 3. If many boast of plane of the floor, is a groove. In this groove its a solid wooden rod firmly affixed to a second or false hard and polished floor, on which the book is placed. By taking hold of the top of the book, and pulling it forward, the top of the book, and pulling it forward, the top of the book is placed. 1. "Wisdom is better than strength." By the pursuit of knowledge wonderful discoveries have been made, revolutionizing old methods of business and giving an entirely new phase to the activities of commerce and inter communication. The Bible is so far from condemning this intellectual activity which has produced and is producing all these wonderful results, that it is precisely in Bible lands, and there only, that this intellectual activity is found. The Christian is the truest free-thinker, in the better sense of the term. The charge that religion would keep men in ignorance and superstition, must come either from one who is himself the slave of ignorance or prejudice, or from a depraved heart, caring neither to know nor to speak the truth. The house of God is a training-school for the intellect as well as for the heart. Worldly wisdom leads away from God. It acknowledges the body—the frame-work of the universe—but denies the indwelling spirit, which animates and energizes the whole. One who has obtained a little knowledge is often in his own conceit wiser than patent for a new style of book-case. It is seven men that can render a reason. Attempt to Wreck a Train. GALVESTON, March 11th.—A special from Palmer, Texas, says: Late Thursday night, an attempt was made to wreck the northbound passenger train, on the Houston and Texas Central Railroad, about a mile south of this town. Half a dezen or more railroad ties were placed across the track on the long water over a swellen stream. The engine pilot shoved all but two of the ties in front of it, running upon them. The formula to the drop on the officer, compelling him to surrender, and, wheeling around quickly, obliged the other two men to do the it, running upon them. The forward trucks were raised about one foot above the rails, when Esgineer Thomas Clark stopped the engine and averted the disaster. The train vas heavily loaded, and those who would not have been killed must almost certainly have been drowned. Had the train proceeded ten feet further this would have resulted. The passengers made up a purse for Engineer Clark. The railroad manager at once put two detectives at work ferreting out the

To THE EDITOR: The so called Chase letter of General Garfield's seems to call from the press quite a discussion as to the opinion entertained by the late President of the abilities of General Rosecrans. Some time during the year 1864, I think (I cannot fix the date precisely), I received from my neighbor, H. H. Honore, an invitation to go over to his house and help him entertain General Garfield, who was his great. I smort a long evening with him I think and help him entertain General Garfield, who was his guest. I speat a long evening with him, I think beyond midnight. I had never met or even heard of General Garfield before, and was very much interested by his colloquial powers. One of the topics of conversation was the relative merits of the Generals whom the war had brought to the surface. I remember very distinctly my surprise when Garfield asserted he considered Rosecrans the ablest General on our side. The Army of the Cumberland had not attracted my attention so much as others, and I attracted my attention so much as others, and I knew but little of its commander, but had read some severe newspaper strictures on his Generalship. So carnest was Garfield in his laudation of his late commander, that I suspected him as being moved somewhat by pers nal friendship as well as by exprit decorps. Being somewhat communicative, I called for his reasons for his opinion, and became convinced by his reasons for his opinion, and became convinced by his reasons for his opinion, and became convinced by his reasons for his opinion, and in placing sincere in his expressed admiration, and in placing sincere in his expressed admiration, and in placing Rosecrans relatively so high. I therefore suspect there is something wrong in all the letters to Chase. CARTER H. HARRISON.

George Law, who murdered the Calavan

Law followed the boys for a fight, as they were not disturbing him, and only looking on the feed grounds for some of their missing cattle. The oldest boy fired his revolver six times at Law, in return for him to let go the bridle rein and hang to as his horse was wounded and unable to travel. The elder Calavan boy felt a bullet pass close by his cheek while in the brush, supposed to be young Law's rifle, and hang-ing his coat in the brush as a blind he managed to crawl away and escape to his cabin. where the younger brother had pulled off his boots and appeared to be in a dying condition, though able to talk. The elder boy then procured medical assistance from Langell valley, but could not save him.
A large posse of citizens, about a dozen or only three of the to go to Law's place, as he might otherwise show fight. Accordingly they succeeded in making the arrest, but young Law, aged about 20, got Young Law, assisted by his father and two other persons, after causing the Constable and the two citizens to leave, concluded to follow them, and run them down to where the balance of the citizens were secreted, who, having formed themselves into a circle, succeeded in securing young Law and two other men named Gordon and Mc-Killen, the old man getting away. The elder Law was defiant, and said he would not be taken alive, though it is said he has given himself up, and was bound over by CHICAGO, March 11th.—The following let- the Bonanza Justice, the others being dis- no distribution of the Bonanza Justice, the others being dis- no distribution of the Bonanza Justice, the others being dister from Mayor Harrison is from the Times: charged. this shot, and I do not think that at that very moment he fired along the river Rouma without finding any coal, when his Majesty, in great displeasure dismissed him, apparently under the impression that a geologist ought to find coal whether it existed or not. He had engaged him for two years, at a salary of £400 a year, but declined to pay him for more than the time he had been actually employed, with an addition of passage money to England.

A Nevada county paper says that the comparatively dry and cold winter, and the mining suits, make it pretty certain that the coming summer will be an exceedingly dull one all through the mountains.

WAR DECLARED!

The appointment of Count Von Walken- A Number of Merchants engaged in the DRY GOODS. BOOT, SHOE and CLOTHING BUSINESS have entered on the Warpath, each claiming to have superior advantage over the others.

CAUSE

Of all this bombast is plain. Heretofore there has been a combination existing between these merchants to keep the prices high enough to enable them to live in luxury. But, like all cliques and rings, discension arises, and after failing in every method to harmonize, they all assist in fanning the flames of discord by participation. Consult the daily papers, and you will see the announcements: "BANKRUPT SALE," "CLOSING OUT," "LESS THAN COST," "CLEARANCE SALE," "NO HUMBUG," etc. This is all sham, and no dealer who uses these sensational beadlines has any love for the TRUTH; for there is not a word of truth in what they say.

We propose to throw a little light on this subject. After the split in this combination, the Warriors (and many of them have formerly had reputations as firstclass dealers), stocked their shelves with a most inferior quality of goods-buying up large lines of AUCTION TRASH—the object being to quote prices less than their competitors in this warfare, and as a result they are now endeavoring to dispose of this rubbish as No. 1 Goods. But those who dance must pay the fiddler. and the purchasers of this trash will pay for their experience. You have no redress; you purchase these goods on the recommendation of the dealer, and after a VERY LITTLE SERVICE, you find the goods are not what they have been represented to be. You return the goods, and acquaint the merchant of the manner in which you have been deceived, and for satisfaction he informs you that you could not expect to obtain the BEST for the price you paid.

We, not being members of this clique, would inform the public that we are in a position to SELL FIRST-CLASS GOODS AT PRICES THAT WILL DEFY ALL COMPETITION.

WE INVITE ALL TO INSPECT OUR WELL-BEIECTED STOCK OF

GOODS, GLOTHING, BOOTS AND SHOES, FANCY GOODS,

LADIES' AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

Etc., and feel confident that the prices which our advantages enable us to quote will convince all that we are the Champions of Low Prices.
